

Brenda
3/29/07

Did you know that keeping the beaches clean can help animals like sea turtles? Every year a million of sea animals are killed because they swallow plastic that was left on the beach. I believe that when people go to the beach they need to throw their trash. Now I invite you to read my paper and develop your own opinion. Beaches are not kept clean. Every year a million magnificent sea birds and 100,000 breath taking marine mammals are killed because they swallow plastic or get caught in it. When you go to an amazing beach or out on the boat make sure you take your garbage home with you. The plastic left on the beach becomes wrapped around birds and is also mistaken for food by fish. People need to help pick up trash. If you leave trash like a can it could hurt a fox or other animals because they can get cut themselves in the sharp edges. Keeping the beaches litter-free helps animals such as sea turtles. They can lay eggs without mistaking litter for food. People should keep the beaches clean. I think beaches should be clean because if there not then it will look dirty. People need to look out for pollution on the beach and report it to your local parks department. Kids should pick up trash in the weekends and pick up trash in the beaches they could pick plastic bottles, left over food, if you see shoes pick it up.